SenesTech Announces Exclusive Distribution Agreement for Evolve™ Soft Bait in Australia and New Zealand

PHOENIX, Feb. 8, 2024 — SenesTech, Inc. (Nasdaq: SNES; "SenesTech" or the "Company"), the leader in fertility control to manage animal pest populations, today announces entry into a Distribution Agreement with Evicom, an environmental management firm based in Australia with distribution throughout Australia, New Zealand and the surrounding region.

"Evicom is an environmental management company that is technology-led and focused on sustainable solutions for the management and control of pests. They already have experience with fertility control as applied to pigeons. With that experience and focus, we are confident they are the right partner to introduce Evolve™ into their broad markets," said Joel Fruendt, SenesTech's President and CEO.

"Australia and New Zealand have great potential for our fertility control products, with excellent economies and a strong dedication to environmentally sound and sustainable methods and products. Australia is experiencing periodic 'rat plagues', and New Zealand has initiated a nationwide effort to eradicate invasive Norway rats by 2050 – so we know the demand is there," continued Mr. Fruendt.

The agreement with Evicom includes annual minimums, and that Evicom will take the lead on regulatory approvals.

"Evicom is thrilled to be appointed exclusive distributors of Evolve for Australia and New Zealand. Knowing SenesTech really cares about humanely managing animal populations through innovative fertility control aligns with our business strategy," said Simon de Bono, Managing Director of Evicom. "It is a fantastic opportunity to partner with SenesTech to add Evolve to our product range and offer customers the first and only soft bait for reducing fertility in rats with no risk to human health or the environment."

About SenesTech

We are committed to improving the health of the world by humanely managing animal pest populations through fertility control. We are experts in fertility control to manage animal pest populations. We invented ContraPest, the only U.S. EPA-registered contraceptive for male and female rats, and Evolve, an EPA-designated minimum-risk contraceptive currently offered for rats. ContraPest and Evolve fit seamlessly into all integrated pest management programs, significantly improving the overall goal of effective pest management. We strive for clean cities, efficient businesses and happy households – with a product designed to be humane, effective and sustainable.
